

SOCIETY NOT END WITH MRS. WILSON

Wife of President-Elect Does Not Aspire to High Social Distinctions.

HER TASTES DEMOCRATIC

Never Has She Spent So Much as $1,000 a Year on Clothes.

New York, February 22.—Mrs. Woodrow Wilson to-day told The Times-Dispatch her plan, when, as first lady of the land, she takes over the keys of the White House.

One of the most democratic women to grace the White House as its mistress, Mrs. Wilson does not aspire to high social distinction, other than that which her high position gives her.

"Society with the Wilson family is not the end," said Mrs. Wilson simply to-day at Princeton, where she talked to the reporter before taking a train for Philadelphia, where she went for a short shopping trip.

"I am not buying a large and elaborate wardrobe for my Washington debut," laughed Mrs. Wilson good-naturedly. "Neither I nor either of my daughters is fond of clothes in the sense that many women are. I like pretty things naturally, being a woman, and I like to be tastefully gowned, but to spend lots of time and money on clothes we are not given to."

"Happiness Not in Clothes." "I do not deprecate the liking for good clothes in any woman, but I am perfectly sure," said Mrs. Wilson, "that women who spend a large portion of their time shopping for pretty things, and standing for hours to be fitted, do not find real happiness in this sort of thing. Every woman well groomed gains a certain amount of satisfaction from this knowledge, but I think women acquire real happiness by being interested in other things much more worth while."

Mrs. Wilson said she had some pretty new gowns which she had made especially for White House functions, but she declared they did not represent extravagant expenditures, again proving her democratic spirit in the matter of dress.

When asked if she regarded $1,000 a year a sufficient sum for a woman going much in society to dress on, Mrs. Wilson smiled.

"A thousand a year," she exclaimed, "is a very small sum for a woman who has to spend any money on her clothes."

That the atmosphere of the White House under the new regime will take on a quality of broad intellectual earnestness, a deep and active interest in the big questions of the day, was suggested by Mrs. Wilson's statement that her three daughters, Margaret, Jessie and Eleanor, all interested, like their parents, in the social problems of the working women of the country, would continue their active interest in all the work in which they were engaged at present.

Mrs. Wilson said her daughter, Margaret, who is studying music in New York, and Eleanor, who is an artist, student at the Art Academy in Philadelphia, would join the family after March 4 at the White House.

"But they will make occasional trips to New York and Philadelphia to keep in touch with their studies," said Mrs. Wilson. "And then the future mistress of the White House gave the first intimation of any possible changes that would be made in the White House management."

Studio in White House. "As Eleanor wishes to keep up her art studies, and as I am so fond of art myself, I expect to fit up a studio where we can both work as we desire. I do not know just yet how I shall be able to do it, but I have this plan in mind," said Mrs. Wilson.

When the many demands that would be made upon her office, she suggested as a possible interference to a continuation of such accomplished work similar to the splendid number of handsome paintings which are being exhibited in the gallery to her credit, Mrs. Wilson quickly explained:

"Oh, painting is a recreation for me. It rests me. I really enjoy it, you know, and I expect I shall be able to find some time for it."

"I am tremendously interested in all the social and industrial reforms of which Mr. Wilson has made so close a study for years, and I shall be interested in keeping in touch with the developments and working out of his plans for industrial betterment," said Mrs. Wilson.

"I have made no social plans, and I have no definite plans for entertaining while I am in office at this moment. Like Mr. Wilson's Cabinet appointments, my mind is still open on these points," laughed Mrs. Wilson.

"My daughters are fond of dancing, but," Mrs. Wilson added, "not the present season's sort of dances. I mean the 'turkey trot' and this class of dance. I don't believe any of these dances will be seen on the White House ballroom floor."

Mrs. Wilson expressed herself as pleased with the fact that she is to have Miss Hagner for her social secretary. Miss Hagner was social secretary to Mrs. Roosevelt when she presided over the White House, and is undoubtedly one of the best versed women in Washington official society.

Miss Helen W. Bones, who is a first cousin of President-Elect Wilson, will be a member of the official family, and at the same time will act as Mrs. Wilson's personal secretary.

Mrs. Wilson said she was greatly pleased with the arrangement made to retain the whole staff of old White House employees.

Grateful to Taft. "President Taft has been so kind," said Mrs. Wilson. "He wrote me a long letter, giving me a great deal of valuable information, which I appreciate very much indeed."

Mrs. Wilson will accompany Governor Wilson to Washington on Monday, March 3, with a big escort of Princeton students.

"I think it is perfectly fine for the students to wish to accompany us to Washington. We are glad to have them, for we are so fond of them all," said Mrs. Wilson.

WORKS CLEVER GAME. Fake Cashier Sent Laundry to Get Cashier Away From Cash.

By means of a clever trick, thieves last night effected an entrance to the office of the Virginia Laundry, at 414 East Marshall Street, rifled the cash register, and got away with between $25 and $30.

Shortly after 7 o'clock Miss Milford, in charge of the office, received a telephone message which instructed her to go to the laundry, at 403 North First Street, as he wished to see her concerning the office door, she went to Turner and found she was not wanted. When she went back to the office she found a panel had been broken from a side door and all the money gone from the register.

A hurried call was sent for the police, and Patrolman Voltz was sent to make an investigation. He found that the panel had been broken from a side door and all the money gone from the register.

DISCUSS PLAN TO IMPROVE HARBOR

Conference of Prominent Presbyterian Educators Held at Bristol.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) Bristol, Va., February 22.—A conference of prominent Presbyterian educators was begun here this afternoon with a view to adopting a plan for co-operative work among the Presbyterian churches and colleges of the Appalachian region. The idea was suggested by Dr. Tilden Scherer, president of King College, this city, and it was upon his invitations that other educators came for the conference.

Prominent in attendance were: President Henry Louis Smith, of Washington and Lee University; Dr. Thomas Lankle, of Davidson College, North Carolina; and Dr. Thomas S. Clyde, president of Austin College, at Sherman, Texas.

To-night the visiting ministers were treated to a reception at King College, the occasion being the opening of the new building, just completed at a cost of $20,000, the money of which was subscribed by members of the alumni.

End Three Days' Session. The educators of the Ninth District concluded their annual conference here this afternoon after three days of profitable discussion and deliberation. Peripatetic Stearnes participated. Every feature of the work was liberally discussed, and many important suggestions were given for the benefit of the younger teachers.

Among the speakers on the closing day were: Superintendent Stearnes, who discussed the normal training school; President J. P. Miller, of the Marion Female College, and Superintendent Edmundson, of Washington County, who discussed the relation of denominational institutions to the public schools; Superintendent P. S. Bingham, of Bristol, Tenn. schools, a former Virginian, who supplemented the address of J. E. Carter, of Lee County, on "Improvement of the Teacher While in Service"; A. W. Stahl, of Gate City, and J. M. Dougherty, who discussed "Normal Training Classes."

It was voted to continue these meetings from year to year, with all counties in the district represented.

INDIAN CHIEFS FIRM IN LOYALTY

tion Sioux, came forward from the group and upturned a second bit of earth with the thigh bone of a buffalo. Then, the chief replied with a speech.

Famous Indians Present. As Hollow Horn Bear's voice died away the Stars and Stripes were run up a great flagpole nearby, to the great delight of the Indian folk, sung by the chiefs.

The band broke out with "The Star Spangled Banner." The gathering of the Indians marked the last time, perhaps, that so many native chiefs will assemble in the East.

Most of them are between seventy-five and eighty years of age. Some of them fought against Custer, among these being Chief Red Bull, who stands six feet four inches tall, and Chief White Man Runs Him, more than seventy years old, tall, straight as a pine tree and one of the finest specimens of the Indian race to-day.

White Man Runs Him was chief of the Moon Scouts. Others were Chief Two Clouds, eighty, nearly blind and almost hidden by feathers, bespeaking his prowess; and Pretty Voice Eagle, of the Sioux, seventy, who carries in his body twenty-one bullets picked up in seventy fights and skirmishes with government troops and neighboring tribes.

In his reply the Indian chief said that he and his companions considered themselves from this day forward citizens of the United States.

"To the end of our days," he said, "we will encourage our children to take the advice of the white man. We ask him to join us and help us get out of the rut in which we have existed so many years. We thought that when the white man came he came as a visitor, but we found he came to rule. We see now that he was fated to come and rule our country and teach us civilization."

Defends His Policy. President Taft, guest of honor at a peace dinner to-night, at which a medal was presented to him in token of his services in the cause of universal peace, spoke frankly of conditions in Mexico as he viewed them, and declared for the exercise of every possible effort in avoidance of intervention in the affairs of that republic. The medal, given by the National Institute of Social Sciences, American Peace and Arbitration League, was presented by Joseph H. Choate, former ambassador to Great Britain.

"Mexico for two years," said Mr. Taft in his address, "has presented a very sad picture to every lover of his kind, to every supporter of popular government, to every man hopeful of establishing peace under a stable government. But we must not despair. We must not, in a case like Mexico—for it differs from the Central American republics—take such action as shall give them to believe that we are moved by selfish purposes or arouse them to oppose us."

"We must avoid in every way that which is called intervention and use all the patience possible with the prayers that our power may rise there to bring about peace throughout that great country. We have to take precautions and these have been taken."

"But I have no sympathy—not at all—and the charge of cowardice does not frighten me—with that which prompts us for purposes of exploitation and to invade another country and involve ourselves in a war, the extent of which we could not realize and the sacrifice of thousands of lives and of millions of treasure—and then when we have succeeded, what? No, we must exercise patience in a concrete case like this."

Discussing the pending peace treaties with Great Britain and France, the president said he was "deeply disappointed that they have not been confirmed by the Senate. But it is to its judgment," he said, "hoping that the time was not far distant when a possible change in the membership and the providential selection" of its personnel would be followed by ratification of the treaties.

Referring to the Monroe Doctrine, he declared the United States ought to see to it that the American hemisphere by attempting, in a peaceful way, to prevent "murderous" warfare. "In this effort," he said, "the South American governments now established on a sound and firm basis, will help us to aid Central America and West Indian governments."

Turning to Panama Canal, President Taft defended his policy of

Some Interesting Facts Regarding Health Statistics

Few people realize to what extent their health depends upon the condition of the kidneys.

The physician in nearly all cases of serious illness makes a chemical analysis of the patient's urine. He knows that unless the kidneys are doing their work properly, the other organs cannot be brought back to health and strength.

When the kidneys are neglected or abused in any way, serious results are sure to follow. According to health statistics, Bright's disease, which is really an advanced form of kidney trouble, caused nearly ten thousand deaths in 1910 in the State of New York alone. Therefore, it behooves us to pay more attention to the health of these most important organs.

An ideal herbal compound that has had remarkable success as a kidney remedy is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great Kidney, Liver and Bladder Remedy.

The mild and healing influence of this preparation is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of cures.

If you feel that your kidneys require attention, and wish a sample bottle, write to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Mention this paper and they will gladly forward it to you absolutely free, by mail.

dent Taft defended his policy of arbitration of the toll question.

"The idea of our getting into a fight with England and not submitting to an international tribunal of arbitration is so absurd," he said, "that not even a Senator can make me understand it other than jokingly."

The President said in concluding his speech:

"Friends, good night. I am going back to Washington to lay down such power as I have had—a power which I have been glad to exercise, whenever I could, in the cause of peace. And I leave you with the most cordial expression for your appreciation of what I have done and in taking the will for the deed."

Forty peace and civic organizations were represented at the dinner. Among the speakers were Henry Claws, president of the league; Dominico D. Gama, the Brazilian ambassador; Job E. Hedger and Mr. Choate, President-Elect Wilson, declining an invitation to be present, wrote:

"It would be very gratifying to me, indeed, if it were possible for me to be present and play a part in expressing the appreciation of the country for the consistent efforts of President Taft in behalf of peace."

Southern Pacific Company Very Reluctant to Sell Central Pacific.

San Francisco, February 22.—"The directors of the Southern Pacific Company were reluctant to sell the Central Pacific stock, but we felt it was a good price we were receiving, and besides we needed the money," declared William Spruille, president of the Southern Pacific, to-day to the State Railroad Commission. "We were in a predicament. The directors told us that we did not sell we would compel us to do so by recourse to law, and we saw interminable litigation ahead of us that would have impaired our credit. Under those conditions we could not borrow the money, and we had to sell."

President Elihu Root, of the commission, regarding the Southern Pacific Company's short line from Sacramento to San Francisco Bay.

The Western Pacific Company opposed the granting of the application on the ground that it would insure a monopoly to the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific, and it was stated to-day that the board's finding probably would be placed before the United States District Court at St. Louis, which soon would be asked to pass on another angle of the dissolution angle.
